Dear Mr. Michaud,

Nikki forwarded your email to me because I am now the Victim Advocate at the State Attorney's Office in Titusville.

I have reviewed this case and will do my best to answer your concerns.

Our records show that Dana Loyd was sentenced on March 30, 2017. She was to serve on year in jail. It is possible that with gain time, she has been released. I checked the Brevard County jail website, and it does not have her listed.

You are correct, it is the responsibility of the Jail to notify victims when an inmate is released. I do not know why they did not notify you. You are welcome to call them to find out. Their phone number is 321-690-1500.

Our records also indicate that she is to be on 2 years of community control followed by three years standard probation when released from jail. You may want to follow up with her community control officer with any follow up questions. I do not know the name of the community control officer, but you can call Probation at 321-264-4073. They can look it up for you and put you in touch with that officer.

I hope this information is helpful to you, Mr. Michaud. Please feel welcome to contact me for further assistance.

Thank you, I believe she was transferred to orange county jail shortly after her sentencing. I will call the probation officer and appreciate if you can confirm her release.

Officer Sloan, Ms Loyd may have shut down her site to the public, however there are still items out there about either myself or my daughter. Please see below the many things I found that seem to be a violation. She should NOT have any opportunities to fix it and be able to be in compliance. The judgement is very clear, she has 24 hours, she has now had more time than that. The longer these items are out there the more they hurt my reputation and that of a 14 year old girl. My daughter worries every day that her friends will see these items. My daughter is overly embarrassed by these articles and any postings of her. Before Dana shut down her site there were no search items via Volusia exposed, now all of a sudden there are several. I do not believe this to be a coincidence at all.

There are still many items on her Facebook page that are disseminated by third parties and by tagging her, and her allowing it, she is complicit in publishing negative articles about myself and my daughter.

The first picture is from her Facebook page that you can clearly identify her and postings of my daughter. This is a violation.

The second picture is a simple Google search with my daughter's name, first item comes from her website. Her page may be taken down from the web for people to see but the articles are still there, this is a violation.

The third and fourth from another page where is clearly "liking" the social media equivalent of commenting on pages. I am guessing she did not realize this was searchable and left it there.

<https://www.facebook.com/search/top/?q=safe%20kids%20international%20dana>

The fifth picture is directly from her facebook page where she has shared someones post that links into volusiaexposed.com which has transcripts from my divorce and discusses me "the father" throughout the article. This is clearly a violation You probably are aware, but this is Dana's facebook page, you can clearly find many violations by taking 10 minutes of your time to protect myself and my 14 year old daughter:

<https://www.facebook.com/dana.loyd1>

I appreciate you sending me the information and hope that you go out of your way to protect myself and my 14 year old daughter as Dana clearly has done the bare minimum to rid the internet of the many items she put out there and seems as though her word was taken that she has complied with the conditions, clearly she has not I look forward to hearing from you and the result of her continued violations. If there is anything else you need or clarification, please let me know.

Attached is a screen shot of me, again, googling my daughter's name, the information is still on the web. This is not something a 14 year old girl should have do deal with to explain to her friends if they look her up. Which they may, as she is an athlete and people will look up her races. In addition, when she is older, this is something that is out there for schools and jobs to find. I sent this shot in yesterday and its still there.

She is still in violation.

I apologize for the delayed response.

After conferring with my Circuit Office, the subject was released on 12/5/17. When she reported, the orders of probation were not available and were marked confidential on the Clerk's website. This made obtaining the orders a little difficult. We requested the orders and received them on 12/7/17. She was not instructed on the orders when she initially reported on 12/5/17 due to the circumstances noted above.

The orders were obtained on 12/7/17, she was called back to the office and she was instructed by Officer Sloan. On 12/7/17, she complied with the court order to remove contents as noted in the court order.

Based on the information above, and absent a signed probation order signifying her acknowledgement, a violation is not willful at this time. It is only willful after she is instructed, has signed her orders, and fails to comply with the order in that 24 hour period.

Thank you for the response. Here is another item that is on line.

<https://www.gofundme.com/DanaDelaney>

The search parameter was pretty simple for this I typed in "dana loyd" and it's the third item. I am surprised that neither you nor dana, a convicted felon, has actually been proactive on the search for this after as many emails as we have had. I understand being willful, however, the order was pretty clear that your team sent me, 24 hours everything should be down. Its not. I would assume in addition to being willful an actual effort has to be put in place, clearly based on my emails that I have previously sent show a clear lack of effort to take anything down until I send an email containing email links and screen shots of the violations.

I would think that is was willful that the convicted felon did not take this down voluntarily and it would be quite hard to believe that she did not do a search after I have sent violations on two separate occasions. The page is clear, that she posted it, looks like she updated it and collected money for her legal bills according to the posts.

This seem difficult to grasp that this has slipped her mind. Quite the contrary, she seems to not do anything until I bring it to your attention.

At this point I am disappointed that the order is not being enforced on its face and the lack of protection for the victim seems to be secondary to giving a convicted felon as many chances to remove the items she was ordered to do and now its 8 days later after she has signed it. This is nothing less than shocking. I would have hope that this lack of effort on her apart would clearly show a willful effort to keep false information out there to ruin my reputation and that of a 14 year old girl.

I hope that you do more than just tell her to take it down at this point.

Before me this day personally appeared Margo Sloan, CPSO, who, being first duly sworn says that DANA LYNN LOYD, hereinafter referred to as the offender, was on the 6th day of April, A.D. 2017 placed on community control for the offense of Cl. 1) FALSE REPORT OF CHILD ABUSE, ABANDONMENT OR NEGLECT (F3) in the Circuit Court of Brevard County, for a term of Two (2) years Community Control, followed by a term on Three (3) years Probation, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 948, Florida Statutes.

Angela,

Unfortunately, I do not believe that Ms. Eastman is the best person to answer my questions, something has clearly clouded her judgement. According to the violation report the probation officer is actually recommending a reduction in the amount of times that Dana Loyd should have to report to the probation officer. This is after she has violated her probation! I am not sure what is going on with the PO, but this is insulting to myself and my 14 year old daughter.

The report being filed is not complete nor accurate of the many violations that I sent to them and appear to worry more about Dana's mandatory reporting versus protecting the victim.

Please tell me how I can send information to the judge who will hear this case or does it go directly to the state attorney who will appear in court to make sure that Dana is to be held accountable for her willful violation of probation?

If you read the thread from the emails with the Probation Officer, I sent more than 1 violation and quite honestly based on their "recommendation" to reduce her mandatory reporting they seem to not take it seriously.

When he gets back I will go over it with him as well. I will take a look at everything you have sent and get with you to determine what if anything we can do as it relates to whether or not this is a willful or substantial violation. It may be better to discuss over the phone so that I make sure I have everything and understand everything going on in this case.

Angela is right in that this is typically handled by probation officers as they are the ones to institute a violation. And Samantha always works well with the state in the pursuit of violations. From what I do know about this case it is rather unique in reach and these types of violations could take some time to collect evidence sufficient to support the conviction especially with a judgment and sentence that may be vague.

That being said it could be as simple as turning on a computer in court with the judge there and "googleing" your name and seeing what is there. Even if we cannot proceed on this particular set of violations we may be able to set up a clarification of sentence with specific direction to take down what we know is there and giving a time frame to get it done. Again this could take a little time.

Either way I think probation can tell her to take down what is there and what they know is there...

Will,

I am happy to speak with you about this.

I sent everything necessary to the Probation Officer. It was as simple as Dana just googling her name and many items came up. There was absolutely no effort on Dana Loyd's part to remove anything from the web. In fact very little if anything was removed until I reached out to the Probation Officer and now the PO, after clear violations, wants to reduce the amount of reporting from the order. That is quite insulting that part of the violation is to reduce the requirements set forth. I am not sure why the PO would try to make a convicted felon's, who violated probation, order less restrictive instead of looking out for the Victims. Am I missing something?

I am concerned that not all the violations I sent to the PO are being submitted. As I understand she had 24 hours from signing the probation information. There were several violations after the 24 hours. The requirements seem pretty straightforward from what I read, she had 24 hours to remove the items in the conditions of probation.

They were not and I sent screen shots with what was there and how simplistic it was to find it. It was clearly willful and substantial. If someone accused you of sexually abusing your child and then went on to post about it, collect money for a defense for it, you would clearly see this as substantial. In addition to this, I have had her colleagues/friends under the guise of "reporting" contact my employer asking about this after the fact. So yes, I want her probation revoked, as she had plenty of time to remove any evidence of her commenting/writing/posting/etc about myself or my daughter. Lets be clear, while she in jail she made sure that her website was renewed, that is clearly willful. since she most likely did not do that from jail, she had someone do it for her and could have easily taken it down as it still had information on there about myself and my 14 year old daughter.

Let me know when you have time to discuss this.

If you do not have all the information sent to the PO, let me know, it was more than what she is putting in the violation report.
