10. Describe the general nature of your current practice including any certifications which you possess; additionally, if your practice is substantially different from your prior practice or if you are not now practicing law, give details of prior practice. Describe your typical clients or former clients and the problems for which they sought your services.

I am currently a District Judge on the Florida Sixth District Court of Appeal. In that role, I hear all manner of appeals and original proceedings that are filed in the District Court, including criminal, civil and family appeals, as well as petitions for extraordinary writs, such as petitions for writ of certiorari, writ of habeas corpus, writ of mandamus and writ of prohibition.

Prior to my appointment to the District Court, I served as a Circuit Judge on the Ninth Circuit Court of Florida in the Domestic Relations Division from February 22, 2021 through December 31, 2022. In that role, I presided over cases related to marriage, children, and families, including but not limited to dissolution of marriage cases, paternity cases, adoption cases, and temporary custody proceedings.

As a Circuit Judge, I presided over more than 40 family law trials, as well as countless evidentiary hearings. The proceedings over which I presided involved complex issues such as disputes involving The Hague Convention, issues of foreign law and the effect of foreign legal proceedings and foreign administrative actions in the State of Florida, medical conditions and disabilities, and discovery disputes concerning foreign assets and entities, complex business arrangements, cryptocurrency, trusts, and construction projects. I also conducted interstate family law proceedings with courts in California, Georgia, New Jersey and South Dakota.

While on the Circuit Court, in addition to my service in the Domestic Relations Division, I periodically presided over proceedings in the Circuit Civil, Circuit Criminal and County Criminal Divisions. In the Circuit Civil Division, I presided over hearings on discovery motions, motions to dismiss, a motion for contempt, and a motion for summary judgment. In the County Criminal Division, I presided over hearings on motions to suppress evidence, motions in limine, plea hearings, and other motion hearings. I also conducted Initial Appearances at the Orange County Booking & Release Center as well as the Juvenile Justice Center. I also reviewed applications for warrants from law enforcement agencies and ruled upon the granting or denial of such applications.

Lastly, I presided over a three-day criminal jury trial in the Circuit Criminal Division. The defendant was charged with Aggravated Assault with a Deadly Weapon, along with the lesser included offenses of Assault and Improper Exhibition of a Firearm.

Before I became a judge, my practice consisted of commercial, intellectual property, consumer protection and other civil litigation for businesses and individuals. I conducted numerous evidentiary proceedings in federal and state courts as first chair. My clients included individuals, small businesses and large companies seeking representation for contract disputes, tort claims, intellectual property disputes, consumer protection matters and other civil litigation matters. In the course of my practice, I litigated complex commercial cases involving highly technical subject matter. I also led multiple large electronic discovery projects requiring supervision of attorneys, paralegals, legal secretaries and outside vendors. The significant cases I litigated as an attorney included:

- Served as lead counsel for national corporations and individual consumers in numerous lawsuits brought under federal and state consumer protection laws, including the Telephone Consumer Protection Act, the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, the Fair Credit Reporting Act and the Florida Consumer Collection Practices Act
- Represented individual in appeal of adverse judgment in breach of contract action involving an international cross-border sale of artwork valued in excess of $4 million
- Represented national retailer defending appeal of judgment dismissing with prejudice claims against retailer for false advertising and fraud
- Represented multinational medical device manufacturer in constitutional challenge to bond validation proceeding initiated in Collier County, Florida
- Represented developer in dispute with general contractor regarding $25 million construction contract for multifamily housing financed by HUD-insured loan

- Represented international developer of multifamily housing in dispute with mezzanine lender involving eleven multifamily properties valued at more than $250 million
- Represented regional transportation company in trademark infringement action
- Represented corporate landowner in defense of breach of lease action with alleged damages in excess of $20 million
- Represented software company in defense of complex litigation involving business torts and claims for copyright infringement based on misappropriation of software code

Appellate?	1

These are cases that I litigated as an attorney prior to becoming a judge. The jury trial was a three-day jury trial in federal court. I personally conducted the entirety of the trial. The non-jury trial was a three-day trial in Florida state court. I was second chair for two days of the three-day bench trial, during which I examined witnesses. The appeal was an appeal from a Florida county court to a circuit court. I personally handled the entirety of the appeal. I also handled an appeal in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, including drafting the Appellant's Initial Brief, but the case settled before the Court issued a decision. I have also conducted many other non-trial evidentiary proceedings as first chair.

As stated above, as a Circuit Judge, I presided over more than 40 non-jury trials and one jury trial.

1. *Erik Larsen v. AR Resources, Inc.

Case No. 4:19-cv-00041-RBS-DEM

Court: U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Norfolk Division

Judge: Hon. Rebecca Beach Smith

Client: Erik Larsen

Nature of Participation: Counsel for Erik Larsen

Dates of Case: April 2019 – June 2020

Opposing Counsel: Randall Lenhart, [REDACTED]
Kevin Cornish, [REDACTED]

Significance: This case is significant because it shows my ability to adeptly handle all phases of litigation. I was the sole attorney for the Plaintiff from the filing of the Complaint through the three-day jury trial and post-trial motions. I prepared all pleadings, conducted all written discovery, deposed all witnesses, prepared the successful response to the Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment, performed all pretrial preparation, drafted all proposed jury instructions, conducted the three-day jury trial and prepared responses to the Defendant's post-trial motions. The jury returned a verdict for the Plaintiff. I prepared a Motion for Attorneys' Fees, which resulted in the Court entering a judgment for attorneys' fees in my favor. The Defendant filed a post-trial Motion for Judgment as a Matter of Law and a Request for New Trial, and I drafted the Response. The District Judge denied the Defendant's motion.

2. *Housing and Residence Life, LLC v. Universal Technical Institute of Phoenix, Inc.

Case No. 6:12-cv-00874

Court: U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Orlando Division

Judge: Hon. John Antoon, II

Client: Universal Technical Institute, Inc. (“UTI”)

Nature of Participation: Co-counsel for UTI

Dates of Case: June 2012 – September 2013

Co-counsel: Todd Pittenger, [REDACTED]

Opposing Counsel: David S. Cohen, [REDACTED]
Shawn L. Demers, [REDACTED]

Significance: This case is significant for the excellent results obtained, the technical nature of the discovery, and the sensitive matters at issue. This case shows my legal acumen, my ability to handle complex discovery, and my judgment in handling matters of a sensitive nature.

UTI is a nationwide provider of technical education training that operates eleven campuses, including one in Orlando. UTI engaged Housing & Residence Life, LLC (“HRL”) as a provider of dormitory style housing for UTI’s Orlando campus. UTI subsequently engaged a separate provider of apartment style housing. UTI also terminated the agreement with HRL due to HRL’s failure to maintain the dormitory style housing in a safe and satisfactory condition. HRL brought suit against UTI for breach of the parties’ contract. I conducted discovery concerning lost profits and other damages, construction defects, health and safety hazards, sensitive issues of criminal activity, and complex statistical survey evidence relating to student satisfaction levels. I deposed the Plaintiff’s expert witness and both of the Plaintiff’s principles. I ultimately drafted a successful Motion to Dismiss, a Daubert Motion, a Motion in Limine, and the Motion for Summary Judgment. After the Court entered an Order granting the Motion for Summary Judgment in part and denying the vast majority of the Plaintiff’s alleged damages, the case settled shortly before the start of trial. The Court’s Order granting the Motion for Summary Judgment in part can be found at Hous. & Residence Life, LLC v. Universal Tech. Inst. of Phoenix, Inc., No. 6:12-CV-874-ORL-28, 2013 WL 4506395 (M.D. Fla. Aug. 23, 2013).

3. *Brevard Land Materials, Inc. v. Boruch-David, LLC

Case No. 05-2013-CA-025901

Court: Circuit Court of the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Brevard County, Florida

Judge: Hon. Lisa Davidson

Client: Boruch-David, LLC (“Boruch-David”)

Nature of Participation: Co-counsel for Boruch-David

Dates of Case: I was co-counsel for Boruch-David from July 2013 through Nov. 2015

Co-counsel: Todd Pittenger, [REDACTED]
Kelly Garcia, [REDACTED]

Opposing Counsel: Charles M. Greene, [REDACTED]
Richard Reinhart, [REDACTED]

Significance: This was one of the most unique and complex cases in which I was involved as an attorney. It was one of multiple lawsuits in a dispute that was litigated in both federal and state courts with multiple appeals taken. I was co-counsel for Boruch-David from July 2013 through November 2015.

In April 2013, Brevard Land Materials, Inc. (“Brevard Land”) filed a Complaint against Boruch-David alleging that Boruch-David breached a Borrow Pit Lease/Operating Agreement that gave Brevard Land the right to excavate fill dirt from a 150-acre Borrow Pit owned by Boruch-David. The agreement was executed in 2002. Brevard Land alleged that in early 2013, Boruch-David barred Brevard Land from the Borrow Pit despite the fact that Brevard Land had not yet excavated the total amount of dirt that Brevard Land was entitled to excavate from the pit. Boruch-David denied the substantive allegations in Brevard Land’s Complaint.

In addition to denying the substantive allegations made by Brevard Land, Boruch-David also asserted that the purported owner of Brevard Land, Donovan Davis, was actually no longer the owner of Brevard Land and that, therefore, he did not have the right to direct Brevard Land to bring claims against Boruch-David. Specifically, in 2009, Donovan Davis had previously been a defendant in a civil fraud action brought against him by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission in the Middle District of Florida (Case No. 6:09-cv-00508). The civil fraud action related to a foreign currency trading firm called Capital Blu Management, LLC, of which Donovan Davis was the manager and owner. In that action, the MDLF entered a preliminary injunction against Mr. Davis creating a receivership estate consisting of essentially all property of Mr. Davis. The receivership estate was intended to repay the victims of Mr. Davis’ fraud. Mr. Davis failed to disclose the existence of Brevard Land to the receiver. As a result, the receiver took no action with respect to Brevard Land. The receiver was discharged and the receivership estate was closed in 2010.

In Brevard Land v. Boruch-David, Boruch-David asserted that because all property of Donovan Davis had been placed into a receivership estate in the Middle District of Florida and had never been released from the receivership estate, the entity Brevard Land remained in the custody of the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida. As a result, Mr. Davis did not have authority to direct the actions of Brevard Land and, specifically, did not have authority to direct Brevard Land to bring legal claims against Boruch-David. Mr. Davis disputed that Brevard Land was in the custody of the federal court. Judge Lisa Davidson ultimately bifurcated this issue and conducted a three-day bench trial solely on this issue. I acted as second chair for two days of the trial, including examining witnesses. After the trial, Judge Davidson ruled in favor of Boruch-David and found that Brevard Land remained in the custody of the federal court. The ruling was upheld by the Fifth District Court of Appeal. I left Akerman in November 2015 and my involvement in the case ended at that time. Subsequently, permission was requested from the Middle District of Florida in order to assert claims on behalf of Brevard Land and the litigation continued.

Nature of Participation: Co-counsel for the three listed clients

Significance: This case shows my ability to understand complex jurisdictional issues. This case involved a trust with connections to three states: Minnesota, South Dakota and Florida. Two contingent beneficiaries of the trust filed a Complaint against the trustees and the primary beneficiary of the trust. The Complaint alleged that the trustees improperly changed the situs of the trust from Florida to South Dakota, which reduced the rights of the contingent beneficiaries. It was undisputed that a South Dakota court had previously entered a final judgment confirming that the situs of the trust was in South Dakota and that the trust was subject to supervision by the South Dakota court. The Plaintiffs sought a declaration that the change of situs was null and void and that the situs of the trust remained in Florida. The Plaintiffs also sought removal of the trustees, to avoid certain payments made from the trust to the trustees, and an award of damages from the trustees.

I was the primary drafter of the Defendants' Motion to Dismiss which argued that the Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to hear the case based on a 1939 case from the U.S. Supreme Court, Princess Lida of Thurn and Taxis v. Thompson, 305 U.S. 456 (1939). In that case, the Supreme Court held that a state court's exercise of jurisdiction over the administration of a trust deprives a federal court of subject matter jurisdiction over a later lawsuit brought by the beneficiaries of the trust asserting claims against the trustees for mismanagement of the trust. The Motion to Dismiss argued that the Plaintiffs' claims, including their claims for money damages and claims to remove the trustees, were quasi in rem claims that actually pertained to management of the trust and its corpus and that, therefore, the claims were subject to the Princess Lida Doctrine and the MDFL lacked jurisdiction. In the alternative, the Motion to Dismiss argued that certain of the Plaintiffs' claims were barred by the Full Faith & Credit clause of the U.S. Constitution, that the Court lacked personal jurisdiction over the Defendants, and that the Plaintiffs' Complaint failed to state a cause of action.

This case concerned very nuanced issues pertaining to jurisdiction. The Plaintiffs asserted that their claims were in personam and disputed that the Princess Lida Doctrine applied. After extensive briefing, the Court agreed that the Plaintiffs' claims were quasi in rem and that, therefore, the Princess Lida Doctrine applied and mandated that the Court dismiss the Plaintiffs' claims. The decision is reported at Selton v. U.S. Bank Trust Nat. Assn., 124 F.Supp.3d 1245 (M.D. Fla. 2015).

Significance: This case is significant because it shows my understanding of the challenges faced by solo and small law firm practitioners, who make up a majority of the members of The Florida Bar. The Plaintiff in this case filed suit against two defendants asserting claims for violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1981, along with five state law tort claims. I began as lead counsel for one of the defendants, Sterling Jewelers Inc. (“Sterling Jewelers”), while I was practicing at Morris, Manning & Martin, LLP (“MMM”) in Washington, D.C. The case lasted approximately two years. Nine months into the case, in February 2018, I left MMM to start my own law firm in Florida. Sterling Jewelers chose to retain me as lead counsel. I handled this significant out of state litigation while also starting and running a new law firm with no other attorneys or staff. I conducted six out-of-state depositions requiring two trips out of state that all occurred while my new law firm was in its infancy. While running this litigation, I had to simultaneously handle all of the client and managerial responsibilities that come with starting and running a new law firm, including handling all matters for my other clients without sacrificing service to any client, missing any court deadlines or failing to meet any other professional responsibility. My personal experience overcoming the challenges of starting and running a small law firm while handling significant litigation will assist me as a member of the body that governs the members of The Florida Bar, a majority of whom practice in small law firms.

I ultimately achieved a successful result for my client in this case. I was the sole author of Sterling Jewelers’ Second Motion for Summary Judgment, which the Court granted in full. The Court's order granting that motion is available at Wade v. Kay Jewelers, Inc., 3:17-CV-990 (MPS), 2019 WL 1396179 (D. Conn. Mar. 27, 2019).

22. Attach at least two, but no more than three, examples of legal writing which you personally wrote. If you have not personally written any legal documents recently, you may attach a writing sample for which you had substantial responsibility. Please describe your degree of involvement in preparing the writing you attached.

(3) Goodman v. Goodman, 6D23-248, 2023 WL 2194586 (Fla. 6th DCA Feb. 24, 2023)

I personally wrote each of these opinions. As with all appellate opinions, I may have received input from other judges on the court.

PRIOR JUDICIAL EXPERIENCE OR PUBLIC OFFICE

23. Have you ever held judicial office or been a candidate for judicial office? If so, state the court(s) involved, the dates of service or dates of candidacy, and any election results.

Governor DeSantis appointed me to the Florida Sixth District Court of Appeal for a term that began on January 1, 2023. I currently serve in that position.

Prior to my appointment to the District Court, Governor DeSantis appointed me to fill a vacancy on the Circuit Court of the Ninth Judicial Circuit. I served in that position from February 22, 2021 through December 31, 2022. I stood for election for a full term to the Circuit Court in 2022. At the close of qualifying on April 29, 2022, I was unopposed and, as a result, I was elected without opposition to a full six-year term.

24. If you have previously submitted a questionnaire or application to this or any other judicial nominating commission, please give the name(s) of the commission, the approximate date(s) of each submission, and indicate if your name was certified to the Governor's Office for consideration.

I applied to the Ninth Circuit Judicial Nominating Commission in September 2018 and the Fifteenth Circuit Judicial Nominating Commission in July 2019. Neither commission certified my name to the Governor's office for consideration.

I applied to the Ninth Circuit Judicial Nominating Commission in January 2021 and the Commission certified my name to the Governor's office for consideration. The Governor appointed me to this vacancy.

I applied to the Fifth District Court of Appeal Judicial Nominating Commission in January 2021. I withdrew my name from consideration prior to the commission certifying names to the Governor due to my appointment to the Circuit Court of the Ninth Judicial Circuit.

I applied to the Sixth District Court of Appeal Judicial Nominating Commission in September 2022 and the Commission certified my name to the Governor's office for consideration. The Governor appointed me to this vacancy.

- (ii) the approximate number and nature of the cases you handled during your tenure;

On the Sixth District Court of Appeal, I handle all manner of appeals and original proceedings that are filed in the District Court, including criminal, civil and family appeals, as well as petitions for extraordinary writs, such as petitions for writ of certiorari, writ of habeas corpus, writ of mandamus and writ of prohibition. During my time on the District Court, I have served on panels that adjudicated 69 cases. Ten of those cases resulted in written opinions. Of the cases that resulted in written opinions, five opinions were authored by me and five were opinions authored by another judge in which I concurred.

During my service as a Circuit Judge from February 22, 2021 through December 31, 2022, between 2,500-2,750 family law cases were typically assigned to my division at any given time. The vast majority of cases are settled by the parties without trial, although many cases that resolve without trial require substantial evidentiary proceedings and discovery hearings before the parties reach a settlement. I presided over more than 40 non-jury trials and countless evidentiary hearings in family law proceedings. I also presided over one criminal jury trial.

1. Nelson v. Mirra, 335 So. 3d 236 (Fla. 5th DCA 2022)

This case came before me on the Circuit Court on an emergency basis when the Petitioner/Mother filed an Emergency Verified Motion for Child Pick-Up Order. The Mother alleged that the Respondent/Father removed the parties' minor child from the Mother's custody and refused to return the child to her. The Parties were not married and the child was born out-of-wedlock. The Respondent was listed as the Father on the child's birth certificate and more than sixty days had passed since the birth certificate was issued. After I denied the motion, the Mother filed a Motion for Reconsideration. The Mother made two arguments: (1) The Father being listed on the minor child's birth certificate did not establish the Father's legal paternity as a matter of law and, therefore, the Mother was the only legal parent; and (2) The Mother was entitled to primary residential custody of the child under Section 744.301(1), Florida Statutes, which states in pertinent part:

The parents jointly are the natural guardians of their own children and of their adopted children, during minority... The mother of a child born out of wedlock is the natural guardian of the child and is entitled to primary residential care and custody of the child unless the court enters an order stating otherwise.

I denied the Motion for Reconsideration and found that: (1) pursuant to Section 742.10(4), Florida Statutes, because sixty days had passed since the Father's voluntary acknowledgment of paternity in the birth certificate, the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity constituted a legal establishment of paternity by the Father; and (2) the Father had an equal right to custody of the minor child along with the Mother.

The Fourth District Court of Appeal held in Stewart v. Walker, 5 So.3d 746, 749 (Fla. 4th DCA 2009), that "the last sentence [of Section 744.301(1)] applies only when there is no father who has declared his paternity and acted like a father to the child." Relying on a case from the Fifth DCA, the Fourth DCA held that "when an unwed father demonstrates and carries out the requisite settled purpose to be a father, he comes within the first sentence of the statute, making him a natural guardian along with the unwed mother." Id (quoting State v. Earl, 649 So.2d 297, 298 (Fla. 5th DCA 1995) (internal quotations omitted)). The Fourth DCA reversed a trial court that applied the last sentence of Section 744.301(1) to find that a Father of a child born out-of-wedlock was not a custodial parent of the child.

On appeal in Nelson v. Mirra, the Fifth DCA agreed with my holding that the Father's voluntary acknowledgment of paternity in the birth certificate established the Father's legal paternity. However, the Fifth DCA found that the Father's established legal paternity did not afford him custody rights without a prior court order granting custody rights, and that the last sentence of Section 744.301(1) granted the Mother primary residential custody over the Father. The Fifth DCA reversed my order on this basis and remanded the case with instructions to hold an evidentiary hearing on the Mother's emergency motion.

2. Arroyo v. Garcia, 339 So. 3d 1097 (Fla. 5th DCA 2022)

This case was a child support case in the Circuit Court primarily handled by the General Magistrate assigned to my division. My Order ratifying the Report and Recommendation of the General Magistrate was reversed by the Fifth DCA.

- 28. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, attach copies of the opinions.

30. Have you ever held an attorney in contempt? If so, for each instance state the name of the attorney, case style for the matter in question, approximate date and describe the circumstances.

No.

31. Have you ever held or been a candidate for any other public office? If so, state the office, location, dates of service or candidacy, and any election results.

I have been a District Judge on the Florida Sixth District Court of Appeal since January 1, 2023. Prior to that, I served as a Circuit Judge on the Ninth Circuit Court of Florida from February 22, 2021 through December 31, 2022. I was a candidate to retain my seat as a Circuit Judge in 2022. At the close of qualifying on April 29, 2022, I was unopposed and, as a result, I was elected without opposition.

NON-LEGAL BUSINESS INVOLVEMENT

32. If you are now an officer, director, or otherwise engaged in the management of any business enterprise, state the name of such enterprise, the nature of the business, the nature of your duties, and whether you intend to resign such position immediately upon your appointment or election to judicial office.

If you received any compensation of any kind outside the practice of law during this time, please list the amount of compensation received.

Since being admitted to The Florida Bar, the only occupation or profession I have engaged in other than practicing law is serving in my prior position as a Circuit Judge and in my current position as a District Judge. From February 22, 2021 through June 30, 2022, my salary as a Circuit Judge was $165,509.00 per year. From July 1, 2022 through December 31, 2022, my salary as a Circuit Judge was $182,060.00 per year. Since January 1, 2023, my salary as a District Judge has been $202,440.00 per year.

POSSIBLE BIAS OR PREJUDICE

34. The Commission is interested in knowing if there are certain types of cases, groups of entities, or extended relationships or associations which would limit the cases for which you could sit as the presiding judge. Please list all types or classifications of cases or litigants for which you, as a general proposition, believe it would be difficult for you to sit as the presiding judge. Indicate the reason for each situation as to why you believe you might be in conflict. If you have prior judicial experience, describe the types of cases from which you have recused yourself.

There are no types or classifications of cases or litigants for which it would be difficult for me to sit as the presiding judge. I would handle every case impartially and treat all litigants fairly and equally. Since becoming a judge, I have not recused from a significant number of cases.

SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION

71. Describe any additional education or experiences you have which could assist you in holding judicial office.

My extensive experience as a trial judge, appellate judge and as an attorney practicing complex civil litigation have prepared me to be an excellent justice on the Florida Supreme Court.

I have deep knowledge of the trial process. I conducted numerous evidentiary proceedings as an attorney and presided over more than 40 trials and countless evidentiary proceedings as a trial judge. Many of the cases over which I presided involved complex issues such as The Hague Convention, issues of foreign law and the effect of foreign legal proceedings and foreign administrative actions in the State of Florida, medical conditions and disabilities, foreign assets and entities, complex business arrangements, and construction projects. The cases I litigated as an attorney likewise often involved complex and challenging subject matter, such as international cross-border business transactions, complex financial relationships, and intellectual property rights in computer code. From this experience, I understand the litigation process as it happens at the trial level. My in-depth and practical understanding of the trial process will assist me in making correct legal rulings on the Florida Supreme Court as well as in performing the Court's rule-making function.

I am also extremely well-prepared to sit on the body that governs the legal profession and The Florida Bar. A majority of the members of The Florida Bar practice in small firms. In addition to practicing in large law firms for more than seven years, I also practiced law as a solo practitioner for three years. My experience as a solo practitioner and personal knowledge of the unique challenges faced by small firms will assist me as a member of the body that governs the members of The Florida Bar.

72. Explain the particular contribution you believe your selection would bring to this position and provide any additional information you feel would be helpful to the Commission and Governor in evaluating your application.

First and foremost, I understand that the rule of law is paramount to the American system of government. In order to uphold the rule of law, courts must follow and interpret the law as it is written. Judges must say what the law is – not what the judges believe the law should be. Laws, whether constitutional or statutory, derive their legitimacy from the democratic process that produced them. For this reason, courts should interpret constitutional provisions according to their text and the original public meaning of that text at the time that the provision was enacted. This is the proper way to interpret constitutional provisions because the text of the provision, based on the public's understanding of the meaning of that text at the time of ratification, is what was ratified by the people that enacted the provision. Similarly, statutes should be interpreted according to their text and the common meaning of that text at the time that the statute was passed. The text of the statute is what was enacted by the legislature pursuant to the constitutional process. If I am appointed as a justice on the Florida Supreme Court, I will never waiver from these principles. I will never allow my personal views to influence my application of the law. I will never engineer an outcome to comport with my personal preferences. I will never make a decision out of a desire to be popular or to follow public opinion. Every decision I make will apply the law as it is written.

Second, my career reflects the intellectual rigor and work ethic necessary to serve as a justice on the Florida Supreme Court. As an attorney, I litigated numerous cases that involved large and complicated universes of facts and legal issues. As a Circuit Judge, I adeptly handled cases involving complex legal and factual issues and did so in the emotionally charged and fast-paced environment that family law cases often present. Now on the District Court, I have handled all manner of appeals and rendered opinions that faithfully applied the law to the facts of each case. I have a track record of successfully evaluating complicated and difficult cases to determine the key legal issues and resolve them correctly according to the law.

Lastly, I will bring consistent and steadfast dedication to my job as a justice on the Florida Supreme Court. I will work as hard as necessary to ensure that I apply the law correctly in every case. No matter how heavy the workload or how difficult the case, I will consider it my moral and ethical obligation to ensure that every decision I make is correct under the law.

District Court of Appeal of Florida, Sixth District.

Christine Marie DUBOIS, Appellant,

v.

STATE of Florida, Appellee.

Case No. 6D23-185

March 31, 2023

Appeal from the County Court for Lee County. Tara P. Paluck, Judge. Lower Tribunal No. 21-MM-000240

Attorneys and Law Firms

Howard L. “Rex” Dimmig, II, Public Defender, and Clarke E. Green, Assistant Public Defender, Bartow, for Appellant.

Ashley Moody, Attorney General, Tallahassee, and Sonia C. Lawson, Assistant Attorney General, Tampa, for Appellee.

Opinion

*1 Appellant, Christine Dubois (“Dubois”), appeals her conviction following a jury trial for contracting without a license in violation of section 489.127\(1\)\(f\), Florida Statutes \(2013\).<sup>1</sup> She asserts that the trial court erred when it denied her motion for judgment of acquittal. We agree and reverse with instructions to the trial court to enter a judgment of acquittal.

Standard of Review

The standard of review for the denial of a motion for judgment of acquittal is de novo. Delgado v. State, 71 So. 3d 54, 65 \(Fla. 2011\). “Generally, an appellate court will not reverse a conviction which is supported by competent, substantial evidence.” Id. (quoting Reynolds v. State, 934 So. 2d 1128, 1145 \(Fla. 2006\)). “There is sufficient evidence to sustain a conviction if, after viewing the evidence in the light most favorable to the State, a rational trier of fact could find the existence of the elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt.” Id. (quoting Johnston v. State, 863 So. 2d 271, 283 \(Fla. 2003\)). “In moving for a judgment of acquittal, a defendant admits not only the facts stated in the evidence adduced, but also admits every conclusion favorable to the adverse party that a jury might fairly and reasonably infer from the evidence.” Id. (quoting Reynolds, 934 So. 2d at 1145 (internal quotations omitted)). However, “[u]nder this standard, the State is required to prove each and every element of the offense charged beyond a reasonable doubt, and when the State fails to meet this burden, the case should not be submitted to the jury, and a judgment of acquittal should be granted.” Id. (quoting Baugh v. State, 961 So. 2d 198, 204 \(Fla. 2007\) (internal quotations, alterations omitted)).

Section 489.127(1)(f) - Contracting Without a License

Section 489.127\(1\)\(f\), Florida Statutes, provides that “[n]o person shall...[e]ngage in the business or act in the capacity of a contractor...without being duly registered or certified.” § 489.127\(1\)\(f\), Fla. Stat. \(2013\). A first-time violation of section 489.127\(1\)\(f\) is a first-degree misdemeanor. § 489.127\(2\)\(a\), Fla. Stat. \(2013\).

Section 489.105(3) defines a contractor as follows:

“Contractor” means the person who is qualified for, and is only responsible for, the project contracted for and means, except as exempted in this part, the person who, for compensation, undertakes to, submits a bid to, or does himself or herself or by others construct, repair, alter, remodel, add to, demolish, subtract from, or improve any building or structure, including related improvements to real estate, for others or for resale to others; and whose job scope is substantially similar to the job scope described in one of the paragraphs of this subsection.

§ 489.105(3), Fla. Stat. (2018). The following paragraphs of section 489.105(3) then provide definitions and “job scopes” for certain specific types of contractors, including general contractor, mechanical contractor, underground utility and excavation contractor, and specialty contractor.

*2 Thus, three requirements must be satisfied in order for a person to be a “contractor” for purposes of section 489.127(1)(f). First, the individual must “construct, repair, alter, remodel, add to, demolish, subtract from or improve” a building or structure for others or for resale to others, or undertake or submit a bid to do so. Second, the individual must engage in such conduct “for compensation.” Third, the individual who engages in such conduct must have a job scope that is “substantially similar” to one of the job scopes described in the paragraphs of section 489.105(3). The job scopes that were included in the jury instructions in this case are the job scopes for a general contractor, mechanical contractor, underground utility and excavation contractor, and specialty contractor. § 489.105(3)(a), (i), (n), (q), Fla. Stat. (2018).<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> Section 489.105(3) includes definitions for additional types of contractors that were not included in the jury instructions below and, therefore, are not at issue in this case. Section 489.103(12) provides an exemption to section 489.127 for “[a]ny person who only furnishes materials or supplies without fabricating them into, or consuming them in the performance of, the work of the contractor.” § 489.103(12), Fla. Stat. (2019). Dubois did not raise the exemption in the lower court or in this appeal, and thus it is not at issue in this appeal.

The Trial Below

At the trial of this matter, the State failed to introduce evidence from which a rational trier of fact could have found beyond a reasonable doubt that Dubois constructed, repaired, altered, remodeled, added to, demolished, subtracted from or improved a building or structure, or that she undertook or submitted a bid to do any of these things. Because the State failed to meet its burden, the trial court should have granted Dubois’ motion for judgment of acquittal.

The State's allegation in this case was that Dubois engaged in contracting without a license by entering into a contract with Thomas Bohmer to install an electrical generator at Mr. Bohmer's home. Installing a generator at a person's home could constitute altering and/or adding to a building or structure, and therefore could satisfy the first element of section 489.127(1)(f), provided that the installation involved affixing the generator to the home or altering the home in some manner, as opposed to simply delivering the generator and plugging it into the home in a non-permanent manner. However, the State did not introduce evidence that Dubois contracted to install the generator at Mr. Bohmer's home, and certainly did not introduce evidence that she contracted to install the generator in such a manner that it would have altered or added to the home.<sup>3</sup> <sup>3</sup> Section 489.127(1)(f) requires that a party construct, repair, alter, remodel, add to, demolish, subtract from or improve a building or structure, or undertake or submit a bid to do so. Only “alter” or “add to” are relevant to this case. It is unclear whether installing a generator would fall within the language of the statute. Simply plugging a generator into a home, even if the generator itself requires substantial work or expertise to set up, may not constitute “adding to” or “altering” the home if the generator could simply be unplugged and removed from the home. On the other hand, affixing a generator permanently to the structure of a home would seem to clearly constitute “adding to” and “altering” the home. In this case, we need not decide what types of installation would satisfy the requirement that a defendant “alter” or “add to” a building or structure because the State did not introduce evidence that Dubois agreed to perform any type of installation with respect to the generator.

The State did not introduce the written contract between Dubois and Mr. Bohmer into evidence at the trial. The State did call Mr. Bohmer as a witness. Mr. Bohmer testified to the existence of a contract between himself and Dubois relating to a generator, but he did not testify to the terms of the contract and, specifically, he did not testify that the contract required Dubois to install the generator at his home. The relevant portion of Mr. Bohmer's testimony was as follows:

*3 Q: Mr. Bohmer, let's focus on the day of the incident here, the offense. June 24, 2020, could you tell us what happened on that day?

A: I had a meeting with Christine Dubois. And I was looking for a new generator. And, uh, she contacted me a few days before that to set up an appointment. She was recommended by a neighbor. And we met and talked about the generator. I had a price in mind and gave it to her and she said that she could meet that price.

Q: The defendant contacted you? Okay. And how did she contact you?

A: By phone.

Q: Okay. And what, what happened after?

A: Well, I think it was like on a Saturday and then we met just one day the following week. And, um, as I said, I had this price. A neighbor had this generator, uh, done for him, and I showed her what the price was, and she said she could do that.

Q: Okay. And so when she told you that she could do that, what was your reaction at that point?

A: I went ahead and we signed a contract.

The closest Mr. Bohmer came to stating the terms of the contract was his testimony that a neighbor had a generator “done for him” and that Dubois “said she could do that.” However, Mr. Bohmer never stated what was “done” with respect to the generator. He did not testify that what was “done” was the installation of the generator. He did not testify that whatever was “done” with respect to the generator involved adding to or altering a building or structure. Without testimony or evidence from which a jury could conclude that Dubois agreed to install the generator in a manner that added to or altered a building or structure, the State did not meet its burden to introduce competent, substantial evidence that Dubois entered into a contract to add to or alter a building or structure.

Mr. Bohmer also testified that Dubois “was supposed to...contact the Homeowners’ Association to get approval from them.” However, Mr. Bohmer did not testify to what approval Dubois was supposed to obtain from the Homeowners’ Association. He did not testify that Dubois agreed to seek approval from the Homeowners’ Association for the installation of a generator on his property as opposed to simply the presence of a generator on his property. Even if Dubois had agreed to contact the Homeowners’ Association to get approval for the installation of a generator at Mr. Bohmer's property, that does not establish that Dubois also agreed to install the generator herself (as opposed to just seeking approval for Mr. Bohmer to install it). Such an agreement to contact the Homeowners’ Association certainly would not establish that Dubois contracted to install the generator in a manner that would have added to or altered Mr. Bohmer's home.

The State also offered the testimony of Lee County Sheriff's Detective Joshua Mied (“Detective Mied”). Detective Mied testified that: (1) he determined that Dubois was contracting without a license; (2) he requested and received Certificates of Non-Licensure from the Department of Business and Professional Regulation for Dubois herself and for three different company names that were either written in a contract between Dubois and Mr. Bohmer or on the outside of a folder in which Dubois kept paperwork; (3) Dubois admitted to Detective Mied that she did not have a license in the State of Florida; and (4) Dubois told Detective Mied that she was working under the license of another person, Phil, of a company called Lee Air. Detective Mied found the fourth point to be irrelevant since Dubois admitted that she was not working as an employee of Phil and, therefore, she could not operate under Phil's license.

*4 Absent from Detective Mied's testimony are the terms of the contract between Dubois and Mr. Bohmer. Detective Mied's conclusory statement that he determined Dubois was contracting without a license did not provide evidence of the terms of the contract between Dubois and Mr. Bohmer. Detective Mied testified that Dubois admitted that she did not have a license, but Dubois did not admit that she needed a license to perform her contract with Mr. Bohmer. Detective Mied did not testify that Dubois entered into a contract which required her to install the generator at Mr. Bohmer's home, much less that she contracted to install the generator in such a manner that would have “altered” or “added to” Mr. Bohmer's home.

Conclusion

In order to meet its burden at trial, the State was required to submit competent, substantial evidence that Dubois entered into a contract to construct, repair, alter, remodel, add to, demolish, subtract from or improve a building or structure. The State failed to introduce any evidence whatsoever that Dubois entered into a contract to construct, repair, alter, remodel, add to, demolish, subtract from or improve a building or structure. For this reason, no rational trier of fact could have found the existence of all of the elements of a violation of section 489.127\(1\)\(f\) beyond a reasonable doubt. We reverse the trial court's denial of Dubois' motion for judgment of acquittal and remand this case to the trial court with instructions to enter a judgment of acquittal.

Because we determine that the State failed to submit competent, substantial evidence that Dubois entered into a contract to construct, repair, alter, remodel, add to, demolish, subtract from or improve a building or structure, we need not decide whether there was sufficient evidence to establish the third prong of section 489.127\(1\)\(f\), i.e., whether Dubois' job scope was "substantially similar" to a job scope described in one of the paragraphs of section 489.105\(3\).

Opinion

MIZE, J.

*1 Ionut Raducan (“Appellant”) appeals his convictions resulting from a nolo contendere plea to multiple felonies on the basis that his attorney was ineffective for failing to properly advise him regarding the immigration consequences of his plea.<sup>1</sup> We affirm.

In the trial court, Appellant entered into a plea agreement by which he agreed to plead “no contest” to all of the charges against him. Appellant did not reserve any matters for appeal except the legality of his sentence and the jurisdiction of the court. After accepting his plea, the trial court adjudicated him guilty and sentenced him to the minimum guideline sentences, with all sentences to be served concurrently.

In this direct appeal, Appellant raises a single claim of ineffective assistance of trial counsel. Specifically, Appellant argues that his trial counsel was ineffective because his counsel failed to advise him that he would be deported as a result of his convictions. Appellant filed this direct appeal without filing a motion to withdraw his plea in the trial court.

[1] Section 924.051(3), Florida Statutes, provides that “[a]n appeal may not be taken from a judgment or order of a trial court unless a prejudicial error is alleged and is properly preserved or, if not properly preserved, would constitute fundamental error.” § 924.051(3), Fla. Stat. (2000). Applying this provision, the Florida Supreme Court has held that an unpreserved claim for ineffective assistance of counsel cannot be raised on direct appeal absent a showing of fundamental error. Steiger v. State, 328 So. 3d 926, 929 (Fla. 2021).

Additionally, Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.140(b)(2)(A) sets forth the grounds upon which a defendant may appeal a conviction resulting from a nolo contendere plea. With certain exceptions, a defendant that pleads nolo contendere may not pursue a direct appeal of any issue except a prior dispositive order of the trial court for which the defendant expressly reserved the right to appeal. Fla. R. App. P. 9.140(b)(2)(A)(i); see also § 924.051(4), Fla. Stat. (2000) (“If a defendant pleads nolo contendere without expressly reserving the right to appeal a legally dispositive issue...the defendant may not appeal the judgment or sentence.”); § 924.06, Fla. Stat. (1998) (“A defendant...who pleads nolo contendere with no express reservation of the right to appeal a legally dispositive issue, shall have no right to a direct appeal.”).

One of the exceptions to this rule is “an involuntary plea, if preserved by a motion to withdraw plea.” Fla. R. App. P. 9.140(b)(2)(A)(ii); see also State v. Dortch, 317 So. 3d 1074, 1078 (Fla. 2021) (stating that rule 9.140(b)(2)(A)(ii)(c) “allows a defendant to appeal an involuntary plea, if preserved by a motion to withdraw plea.” (quoting Fla. R. App. P. 9.140(b)(2)(A)(ii) (internal quotations omitted))).

[2] A plea entered into with ineffective assistance of counsel is an involuntary plea. See Hoskin v. State, 341 So. 3d 443, 444 (Fla. 3d DCA 2022) (treating a plea that allegedly resulted from ineffective assistance of counsel as an involuntary plea under rule 9.140(b)(2)(A)(ii)(c)); Hobbs v. State, 790 So. 2d 1164, 1166 (Fla. 4th DCA 2001) (treating a plea that allegedly resulted from ineffective assistance of counsel as an involuntary plea).

*2 In this case, Appellant's ineffective assistance of counsel claim was not preserved in the trial court and Appellant does not assert that the trial court committed fundamental error. Therefore, pursuant to section 924.051(3), Florida Statutes, Appellant cannot pursue a direct appeal. Steiger, 328 So. 3d at 929.

Moreover, even if the Appellant had asserted that the ineffective assistance of counsel rose to the level of fundamental error, Appellant must still have preserved the error by filing a motion to withdraw the plea in the trial court in accordance with rule 9.140(b)(2)(A)(ii)(c). Dortch, 317 So. 3d at 1084 (holding that there is no fundamental error exception to the requirement of rule 9.140(b)(2)(A)(ii)(c) that a defendant preserve a claim of involuntary plea by filing a motion to withdraw the plea). For these reasons, we affirm.

AFFIRMED.

Background: Wife filed petition for dissolution of marriage, determination as to custody of the parties' minor children, and determination as to support for those children. The Circuit Court, Lee County, John S. Wife appealed and husband cross-appealed. The District Court of Appeal, [Salario, J., 231 So.3d 574, affirmed in part, reversed in part, and remanded. Wife petitioned state supreme court for review. The Supreme Court, 2018 WL 1410717, denied wife's petition. After remand, the Circuit Court, Lee County, John S. Carlin, J., entered second amended final judgment of dissolution. The District Court of Appeal, 310 So.3d 493, affirmed in part, reversed in part, and remanded. After second remand, the Circuit Court, 20th Judicial Circuit, Lee County, John S. Carlin, J., entered third amended final judgment of dissolution. Wife appealed.

Holdings: The District Court of Appeal, Mize, J., held that:

[1] portion of husband's annual bonus and annual stock options that were awarded to wife as a matter of temporary relief prior to trial could be treated as income and awarded as temporary alimony; but

[2] argument of wife that trial court erred by finding that certain funds awarded to her were improperly treated as both temporary alimony and part of her equitable distribution was not barred by doctrine of res judicata;

[3] portion of brokerage account of husband could not be awarded to wife both as temporary alimony and as part of equitable distribution; and

[4] third amended final judgment for marital dissolution was required to include findings regarding the parties' respective incomes, wife's need, and husband's ability to pay during the period for which retroactive alimony was awarded; but

[5] evidence supporting trial court's finding that wife had received funds from a trust as income was competent and substantial; but

[6] portion of brokerage account of husband could not be included in calculation of wife's net income for child support purposes.

Reversed and remanded.

West Headnotes (8)

[1] Divorce 🔑 Grounds, factors, and considerations

Portion of husband's annual bonus and annual stock options that were awarded to wife as a matter of temporary relief prior to trial could be treated as income to former husband and paid to former wife as temporary alimony; annual bonus was income, and it was within trial court's discretion to treat husband's stock options as income, especially since husband received stock options each year on an annual basis.

[2] Divorce 🔑 Support pending proceedings

Wife's argument that trial court erred by finding that certain funds awarded to her as a matter of temporary relief prior to trial were temporary alimony, but then also awarding those funds to her in equitable distribution, was not barred by doctrine of res judicata, despite wife raising this argument in prior appeals, since issue was within the scope of prior remand to consider and clarify any findings in regard to wife's request for retroactive alimony.

[3] Divorce 🔑 Separate wealth, estate and resources

Trial court has discretion to treat stock options as income rather than assets, for purposes of determining alimony in dissolution of marriage proceeding.

[4] Divorce 🔑 Grounds, factors, and considerations

Portion of brokerage account of husband in the amount of $15,000, which had been awarded to wife as a matter of temporary relief prior to trial, could not be awarded to wife both as temporary alimony and as part of equitable distribution; trial court did not purport to make an unequal distribution of marital assets but instead found that this part of supposed equal distribution of marital estate was also temporary alimony paid by husband. Fla. Stat. Ann. § 61.075(1).

[5] Divorce 🔑 Award of Gross Sum

Lump sum alimony may be awarded in form of equitable distribution; in other words, trial court may give party greater share of distribution of marital assets as form of lump sum alimony, provided lump sum alimony is otherwise appropriate.

[6] Divorce 🔑 Determination and Findings

Third amended final judgment for marital dissolution was required to include findings regarding the parties' respective incomes, wife's need, and husband's ability to pay during the period for which retroactive alimony was awarded.

[7] Child Support 🔑 Weight and Sufficiency
Divorce 🔑 Income and assets

Evidence supporting trial court's finding that wife had received $10,678 from a trust was competent and substantial, and thus such funds were properly imputed to wife as income for purposes of determining her net income in proceeding for marital dissolution, alimony, and child support.

[8] Child Support 🔑 Effect of Divorce, Dissolution of Marriage, or Annulment

Portion of brokerage account of husband in the amount of $15,000, which had been awarded to wife as a matter of temporary relief prior to trial, and which was improperly awarded to wife both as temporary alimony and as part of purported equitable distribution, could not be included in calculation of wife's net income for child support purposes. *Fla. MIZE, J.

*1 This is the third appeal arising from a dissolution of marriage proceeding between Appellant and former wife, Kimberly Goodman ("Former Wife"), and Appellee and former husband, Sean Goodman ("Former Husband").<sup>1</sup> Because the trial court failed to comply with the Second District Court of Appeal's opinion from the second appeal, we reverse.

Background and Prior Appeals

Former Wife filed a Petition for Dissolution of Marriage in 2013 seeking, among other things, alimony and child support. Former Husband responded with a Counter-Petition for Dissolution of Marriage. After entering orders requiring Former Husband to provide temporary support to Former Wife and the parties' children, the trial court held a trial in January 2015. After the trial, the trial court entered a Final Judgment of Dissolution of Marriage that, among other things: (1) imputed certain income to Former Wife; (2) found that Former Wife had a need of $10,000 per month and that $3,500 of that need could be met from other sources; and (3) awarded Former Wife durational alimony in the amount of $6,500 per month for eight years.

Both parties appealed the original Final Judgment. In that appeal, Former Wife raised numerous issues related to the durational alimony award, including that the income imputed to her by the trial court was unsupported by record evidence. The Second District Court of Appeal issued an opinion in that appeal on October 13, 2017, which affirmed in part and reversed in part. See Goodman v. Goodman, 231 So. 3d 574 (Fla. 2d DCA 2017). That opinion stated in pertinent part:

While we find no error in the award of durational alimony or the imputation of income, there are related matters that the trial court should address on remand...Ms. Goodman is correct that to the extent she sought retroactive amounts [of alimony], the final judgment fails to make the findings required regarding need and ability to pay. See § 61.08(2), Fla. Stat. (2013). The trial court on remand should consider and clarify any findings in regard to her request for retroactive alimony for that time. See Alpert v. Alpert, 886 So. 2d 999, 1002 (Fla. 2d DCA 2004). This will also allow the trial court to consider Mr. Goodman's argument that his former wife's imputed income and trust income should be factored into any retroactive award. These issues will likewise bleed into the child support calculations, and we direct a similar determination of the issue of retroactive child support as well. See § 61.30.

In sum, we reverse the final judgment of dissolution to the extent expressed in this opinion...We remand for the additional proceedings described in this opinion. In all other respects, we affirm the final judgment of dissolution.

Id. at 577-78.

After the remand, on August 14, 2018, the trial court entered a Second Amended Final Judgment of Dissolution of Marriage (the "Second Amended Final Judgment"). Former Wife appealed the Second Amended Final Judgment. The Second District Court of Appeal entered an opinion in that appeal on December 9, 2020, which stated in full:

*2 [Former Wife] appeals from the second amended final judgment of dissolution, which the trial court entered on remand after a prior appeal. Our opinion in that prior appeal directed the trial court to, among other things, "consider and clarify any findings in regard to [Former Wife's] request for retroactive alimony" and for retroactive child support. See Goodman v. Goodman, 231 So. 3d 574, 577 (Fla. 2d DCA 2017). Because the court inadvertently failed to do so, we remand for the court to do so now. In all other respects, we affirm.

See Goodman v. Goodman, 310 So. 3d 493, 493 (Fla. 2d DCA 2020).

On December 23, 2021, the trial court entered a Third Amended Final Judgment of Dissolution of Marriage (the "Third Amended Final Judgment"). Despite the explicit instruction from the Second District Court of Appeal to the trial court, the Third Amended Final Judgment does not include findings regarding Former Wife's need and Former Husband's ability to pay during the period that the dissolution action was pending, i.e., from the time of the filing of Former Wife's Petition for Dissolution of Marriage through the date of the trial. Instead, for that retroactive period, the trial court simply required Former Husband to pay Former Wife the same monthly alimony amount ($6,500) that the trial court found should apply prospectively based on the parties' financial positions as of the date of trial, without making any finding as to Former Wife's need or Former Husband's ability to pay during that retroactive time period. As to retroactive child support, the Third Amended Final Judgment likewise failed to make a finding regarding Former Husband's income during the retroactive period – and instead calculated retroactive child support using the income that the trial court found Former Husband earned as of the date of the trial.

The Instant Appeal

Former Wife appeals the Third Amended Final Judgment and the trial court's Order Denying Former Wife's Motion for Rehearing of the Third Amended Final Judgment. Former Wife raises three issues.

[1] [2] [3] First, Former Wife asserts that the trial court erred by finding that certain funds awarded to her as a matter of temporary relief prior to the trial were temporary alimony, but then also awarding those funds to her in equitable distribution.<sup>2</sup> Those funds were: (1) a share of Former Husband's annual bonus in the amount of $16,900; (2) a share of Former Husband's annual stock options award in the amount of $14,000; and (3) a portion of an Ameritrade brokerage account in the amount of $15,000. As to the bonus and the stock options, Former Wife is incorrect that these amounts were awarded to her in equitable distribution. These amounts were treated as income to Former Husband and paid to Former Wife as temporary alimony. This was not improper. A trial court has discretion to treat stock options as income rather than assets. See Seither v. Seither, 779 So. 2d 331, 333-34 (Fla. 2d DCA 1999). Such treatment was especially appropriate here where Former Husband receives stock options every year on a recurring basis.

2 Former Husband argues that this argument is barred by the doctrine of res judicata because Former Wife raised this argument in her prior appeals. We reject Former Husband's argument because this issue was within the scope of the Second District Court of Appeal's remand to the trial court to "consider and clarify any findings in regard to [Former Wife's] request for retroactive alimony." See Goodman, 310 So. 3d at 493.

*3 [4] [5] As to the Ameritrade account, this account was a marital asset that was treated by the trial court as temporary alimony and also granted to Former Wife in equitable distribution. This was improper. Lump sum alimony may be awarded in the form of equitable distribution. In other words, a trial court may give a party a greater share of the distribution of marital assets as a form of lump sum alimony, provided lump sum alimony is otherwise appropriate. See Pipitone v. Pipitone, 23 So. 3d 131, 136 (Fla. 2d DCA 2009); see also Kenney v. Goff, 259 So. 3d 140, 146 (Fla. 4th DCA 2018); Canakaris v. Canakaris, 382 So. 2d 1197, 1201-03 (Fla. 1980) (holding that lump sum alimony and equitable distribution may be interrelated as part of one overall scheme). However, in this case, the trial court did not purport to make an unequal distribution of marital assets for the purpose of awarding Former Wife lump sum alimony. Instead, the trial court purported to make an equal distribution of the parties' marital estate. And yet, the trial court found a part of the supposedly equal half of the marital estate received by Former Wife to also be temporary alimony paid to her by Former Husband. If the $15,000 from the Ameritrade account was in fact temporary alimony paid by Former Husband to Former Wife, then this amount could not also be part of her equal half of the marital estate. If the $15,000 was alimony instead of part of Former Wife's portion of the marital estate, then Former Wife actually received less than half of the marital estate, even though the trial court purported to order an equal distribution of the marital estate and did not make findings to support an unequal distribution of marital assets. See § 61.075(1), Fla. Stat. ("[T]he court must begin with the premise that the distribution should be equal, unless there is a justification for an unequal distribution based on all relevant factors."). For these reasons, the trial court erred by determining that the $15,000 from the Ameritrade brokerage account was temporary alimony to Former Wife and also awarding this amount to Former Wife as part of an equal equitable distribution of marital assets.

Former Wife's second argument on appeal is that the trial court erred by failing to make a finding regarding Former Wife's need during the period when the dissolution was pending. Former Wife's third argument is that the trial court failed to calculate retroactive child support based on the party's net incomes during the period when the dissolution was pending. Specifically, as to Former Husband, Former Wife asserts that the trial court used Former Husband's current income as of the date of the trial, instead of making a finding and using Former Husband's actual income during the retroactive period. As to herself, Former Wife asserts that the trial court: (1) found she received income from a trust in the amount of $10,678 without competent, substantial evidence to support the finding; and (2) improperly counted assets distributed to her in equitable distribution as income for purposes of determining her net income for child support purposes. Those assets were the same assets listed above: (1) a share of Former Husband's annual bonus in the amount of $16,900; (2) a share of Former Husband's annual stock options award in the amount of $14,000; and (3) a portion of an Ameritrade brokerage account in the amount of $15,000.

[6] Former Wife's second and third arguments are interrelated and will be addressed together. Former Wife is correct that the Third Amended Final Judgment does not include findings regarding Former Wife's need and the parties' respective net incomes during the period when the dissolution was pending. As stated above, the Second District Court of Appeal previously found that the trial court failed to make the required findings regarding need and ability to pay with respect to Former Wife's request for retroactive alimony and retroactive child support. The Second District Court of Appeal twice remanded this case to the trial court to make those findings. We now remand this case to the trial court a third time to make these findings. On remand, the trial court must make findings regarding the parties' respective incomes, Former Wife's need, and Former Husband's ability to pay during the period for which retroactive alimony is awarded. Retroactive child support must be revised to reflect these findings.

[7] As to Former Wife's argument regarding the trial court's finding concerning her trust income, there was competent, substantial evidence for the trial court's finding regarding this income.

[8] As to Former Wife's argument that the trial court improperly counted assets distributed to her in equitable distribution as income for purposes of determining her net income for the child support calculation, the bonus and stock options were not awarded to Former Wife in equitable distribution. As stated above, these items were treated as income to Former Husband and awarded to Former Wife as temporary alimony. As to the $15,000 from the Ameritrade brokerage account, as detailed above, Former Wife is correct that this was an asset awarded to Former Wife in equitable distribution. Therefore, the trial court erred by including these funds in the calculation of Former Wife's income for child support purposes. See § 61.30(2), Fla. Stat. (listing items that may be treated as income for purposes of calculating child support).

*4 For the reasons stated herein, we reverse the Third Amended Final Judgment and remand for further proceedings consistent with this opinion.
