Spencer Hathaway - PIO State Attorney
Gary Davidson - PIO Volusia County Sheriff Department

Spencer / Gary:

We (VolusiaExposed.Com) have been approached by the Thripp family.

As per a VSCO incident report obtained off of Clerk.Org - the VCSO had an incident with the Thripp family in the early morning hours of Dec. 26, 2014.

This incident was video recorded by the family - it details members of the VCSO knocking on the door of the Thripp residence - demanding for the residents to come out of the house in order to conduct some type of well being check.

We were initially made aware of this incident shortly after it's 2014 occurrence - but have no interest in it - in our opinion it had no media value. However - we have now been notified that after a 17 month delay - the State Attorney has filed a criminal complaint against Mr. Thripp for making false 911 calls during this 2014 incident.

We now feel that this incident may indeed have media value - especially should this case go to trial.

We would like to compare and to contrast the Thripp incident and criminal charges with other similar incidents (see below web links).

Due to this being an open criminal case - we appreciate that your offices are limited in your abilities to address questions - however - we would ask that you address the following questions:

1. Why the 17 month delay in the filing of criminal charges?
2. If the VCSO did have an honest belief regarding their need to do a well being check - why didn't they (deputies) enter the home under exigent circumstances?

Regards;

The Morrison Case

Below is a link to our most recent article regarding the Morrison prosecution - within this article are links to our earlier Morrison articles.

Morrison also called 911 - but he was NOT charged with illegal 911 calls.

Ms. Clark's arrest for 911 calls - she was calling 911 because the deputy was refusing to properly investigate the theft of her wallet - turns out she was right - but she still got charged with illegal 911 calls

The Patricia Marianetti case

She calls Volusia 911 - lies about someone breaking into her home - lies about a gun - deputies arrive - she points a pressure washer wand at deputy - deputy thinks its a long gun - shoots her - no charges were filed. Then again - she lives off John Anderson.
