Good Afternoon,

I have attached the CAD comment for the referenced incident. It is not the standard practice to drive an intoxicated person's vehicle home for them. Inasmuch as the individual was not driving the vehicle in the presence of the officer, as you know a DUI arrest was not appropriate. The officer however should have either had the individual call someone to move the vehicle or have it towed if not parked legally. The officer erred in moving the vehicle albeit a very short distance and he will be counselled for his action.

Chief Monahan

Chief Monahan:

VolusiaExposed anticipates posting an article regarding an incident involving VCSO Sgt. Ken Vickery and the Port Orange PD.

This incident apparently transpired on April 23, 2014. It involves POPD Sgt. Bird and Ofc. Nolan. Below is an attached copy of the VCSO IA report. (Allow time for download)
<http://volusiaexposed.com/investigations/vcso/ROI.IA14-012.KenVickery.pdf>

Our PRR is for any reports filed by POPD regarding this April 23, 2014 incident - this includes, but is not limited to, any incident reports filed by Bird or Nolan, and any disciplinary reports filed on Bird or Nolan.

Also, we would appreciate if you would address the following question:

It is standard practice for POPD officers to drive suspected intoxicated persons' vehicles home for them? Obviously, we are attempting to gain an appreciation of why Sgt. Bird drove Sgt. Vickery's truck and boat home for him.

Please advise us in advance of any costs associated with our PRR - and use our below email address as our point of contact.

Regards;
